April 2009

Economy Perspectives

Capital account posts a deficit

The current account deficit widened to US$14.6 billion in Q3FY09, albeit a marginal improvement in trade deficit compared to Q2FY09. A sharp fall in net portfolio inflows, banking capital and short-term trade credit also led to a capital account deficit for the first time since Q1FY99 amounting to US$3.2 billion. As a result, the overall the balance of payments deficit in Q3FY09 widened to US$17.9 billion.

Industrial activity continues to contract

Overall industrial activity shrunk by 0.5 per cent in January 2009, while the manufacturing output declined by 0.8 per cent. The cumulative growth during April-January 2008-09 now stands at 3.0 per cent as compared to 8.7 per cent during the same period a year earlier. Industrial growth is expected to remain subdued as the forward looking indicators do not show any signs of a quick recovery

Exports contract sharply

Merchandise exports dropped by 21.7 per cent in February 2009, the sharpest contraction yet. This brought down the cumulative growth for April-February to a mere 7.3 per cent. Import growth declined even more sharply, falling by 23.3 per cent. A slowdown in domestic demand coupled with a lower import bill owing to a sharp drop in commodity prices contributed to this decline.

Diversion in the WPI and CPI inflation continues

In February 2009, WPI Inflation declined for the sixth consecutive month to 3.6 per cent. Headline inflation fell further to 0.31 per cent in the third week of March. Although CPI inflation has fallen below the double-digit level, it continued to be high at 9.63 per cent in February. We expect average inflation for 2009-10 to be within the range of 3.0-3.5 per cent.

Bank credit growth to remain below the target

The credit off-take grew by 1.7 per cent in during the first fortnight of March over the previous month, which is the highest m-o-m growth in the last 3 months. Credit growth on the y-o-y basis however, moderated to 18.1 per cent. In the third week of March, excess liquidity in the system was squeezed on account of advance tax outflows and redemption pressures in the mutual funds. Nonetheless, there continues to be sufficient liquidity in the system at present.

Rupee ends 2008-09 at 51.0 per US$

The Rupee ended FY09 at 51.0 per US$. The currency depreciated from the average of Rs 49.2 per US$ in February to Rs 51.2 in March amidst the increased outflow of foreign investment. The average exchange rate in 2008-09 was Rs 46.0 per US$ compared to 41.7 in FY08. The rupee is unlikely to see significant upward momentum from current levels unless foreign inflows pick up, which is likely in the second half of FY10. On balance, we expect the rupee to settle between 45.5 -46.0 per US$ by March-end 2010.

10-year G-sec yield firms up

In March the yields hardened despite the easing of interest rates by the RBI and falling inflation on account of heightened concerns over the government's borrowing programme. The 10-year paper closed at 7.01 per cent on March 31, 2009. Further interest rate cuts are expected in view of sharp moderation in growth abatement of inflationary pressures, which would exert a dampening effect on the yields. On balance, we expect the yields on the benchmark 10-year G-sec to end 2009-10 at around 6.3-6.5 per cent.

Global economy to enter a recessionary phase

The economies of the US, EU and UK contracted by 6.0-6.4 per cent (q-o-q annualised) in the fourth quarter of 2008. The Japanese economy shrank by twice that rate at an annualized rate of 12.1 per cent in the same period. Economic growth in China has also moderated sharply. In the wake of a sharp deterioration of global economic outlook, the Bank of England and European Central Bank cut policy interest rates to historic lows of 0.5 per cent and 1.25 per cent, respectively. With the interest rate already at an effective lower bound of zero, the Federal Reserve adopted unconventional measures to ensure liquidity in the economy.

Economic Outlook

Parameter	Macroeconomic Indicators - Forecasts 2008-09	Rationale
Growth	Agriculture 3.0 Industry 4.5 Services 7.7 Total 6.1	The continued fallout from the global economic slowdown is expected to pull down growth further in the first half of 2009-10 with a recovery starting in the third quarter. Industrial growth is expected to remain weak due to demand slowdown - both in exports and domestic along with financing crunch continuing at least in the first half of the year. Services growth is expected to moderate sharply, although it would continue to be the main driver of growth.
Inflation	WPI-Average 3.0-3.5	The inflation would continue to fall from the current level in the first half of 2009-10 as commodity prices, especially oil expected to remain at a relatively low level due to global slowdown as well as a favourable base effect. In the latter half of the year, inflation should start picking up as demand recovers.
Interest rate	10-year G-Sec (Year-end) 6.3-6.5	The steady infusion of liquidity and further loosening of the monetary policy by the RBI as well as a decline in credit demand by the private sector as a result of growth slowdown would bring interest rates at a moderate level. In contrast, the increased government demand for funds to finance its deficit would work in the opposite direction. Overall, our interest rate forecast is consistent with our GDP growth forecast.
Exchange rate	Re / US $ (Year-end) 45.5-46.0	With some normalization in the pattern of capital flows next year, the rupee should move back towards its fundamental trend, which is to appreciate. The demand for dollars should remain subdued with oil and other imports expected to slowdown. With exports declining, the supply of dollars would come from capital inflow. However, the margin of error for the forecast remains high in view of the continued global financial instability.
Fiscal deficit (Incl off-budget liabilities)	as a % of GDP 5.5-6.0	With further fiscal stimulus expected after the national elections and the implementation of the remaining part of the sixth pay commission salary hikes the pressure on the fiscal deficit would remain although oil, food and fertiliser subsidies and off budget liabilities are expected to decline next year. Tax revenue would suffer as economic activity slows down sharply next year with the average inflation below 4 per cent level.

Update on Industry

Urea companies' credit profiles sensitive to funding mix

CRISIL believes that urea companies' credit profiles, which are already under stress, could be severely affected if the companies contract more debt to fund brown-field expansions, which are being encouraged under the government's new urea policy. The policy, announced a few months ago, has attracted revamp and de-bottlenecking investments at existing facilities. However, such projects by themselves will not suffice to bridge India's urea demand-supply gap.

Pawan Agrawal, Director CRISIL Ratings, said, "The policy's success in catalysing brown-field expansion or green-field projects will depend upon a number of imponderables, chief among them being international urea prices, and the availability, pipeline connectivity, and price, of natural gas."

More importantly, the funding mix for this investment will be critical in deciding the credit risk profile of urea players. "Any fresh debt will add to the significant volume that is already on these players' balance sheets, and could drive some urea manufacturers' debt to levels where the present ratings would suffer significant stress" Mr. Agrawal added.

With the first tranche of gas from Reliance Industries Ltd's KG basin expected to reach urea units this month, and given the priority that existing urea units enjoy under the Gas Utilisation Policy, the increased profits for efficient gas-based urea producers from revamp or de-bottlenecking projects will clearly improve these players' business risk profiles.

Sudip Sural, Head CRISIL Ratings said "While the likelihood of easing gas supplies augurs well for fresh capacity additions, urea companies will continue to face delays in government subsidy settlement. The eventual recovery of the subsidy dues is certain, but the delay can still lead to pressure on urea manufacturers' credit profiles as the build-up of receivables has to be financed through borrowings." Therefore, working capital borrowing levels are expected to remain high for most CRISIL-rated urea manufacturers.

Management Speak

SME - An International Perspective

India has a lot going for it in terms of financial management practices, but there is still a lot we can learn from innovations abroad, opines Yogesh Dixit, Head SME Ratings, CRISIL.

Financing is the lifeblood of small and medium enterprises (SMEs). While the Indian financial markets have contributed considerably in providing access to funds to SMEs, an evaluation of best practices and innovations in other markets could provide us with pointers on how to move forward. This article examines some best practices in the international SME financing space and evaluates potential solutions to enhance funding for SMEs in India.

Technology and information

Let us begin with debt – the preferred, but overused, funding source for most SMEs worldwide. The use of technology and the creation of electronic platforms has resulted in significant innovation in this space, enhanced access to funds and reduced costs. In general, SMEs have limited and expensive financing options, as most SME lending is local and based on the bank's intimate knowledge of the customer. SMEs cannot access other financiers as the information available on the SMEs, to facilitate lending, is minimal. However, in several developed markets, credit bureaus and SME exchanges, which provide information on the payment track record of SMEs, have played a key role in facilitating this linkage. The central availability of information has resulted in the creation of an entire set of analytical and informational tools that can provide quantitative as well as qualitative inputs for establishing the credit quality of an SME. This provides a strong interface for banks to understand the profile of SMEs, even in remote locations, and establish relationships with them; needless to say, financing options for SMEs are thereby enhanced and funding costs brought down.

Credit guarantee funds

However, access to bank lending alone is not good enough providing collateral is another significant challenge for SMEs. This challenge has been met elegantly through the use of credit guarantees. Credit guarantee funds backed by sovereign governments or private institutions are an interesting innovation in this space. These funds provide partial or full guarantees to small enterprises, which can then use these guarantees to take collateral-free loans from banks. Another interesting effort has been through mutual guarantee funds in Italy, France, and Spain, where industry associations have pooled in resources to provide common collateral to banks. The stake of each member in the fund, and peer pressure from other members of the association, forces discipline on borrowers. This practice has given banks access to high-quality assets, and allowed them to offer comfortable terms and credit at low cost to entrepreneurs.

Equity funding

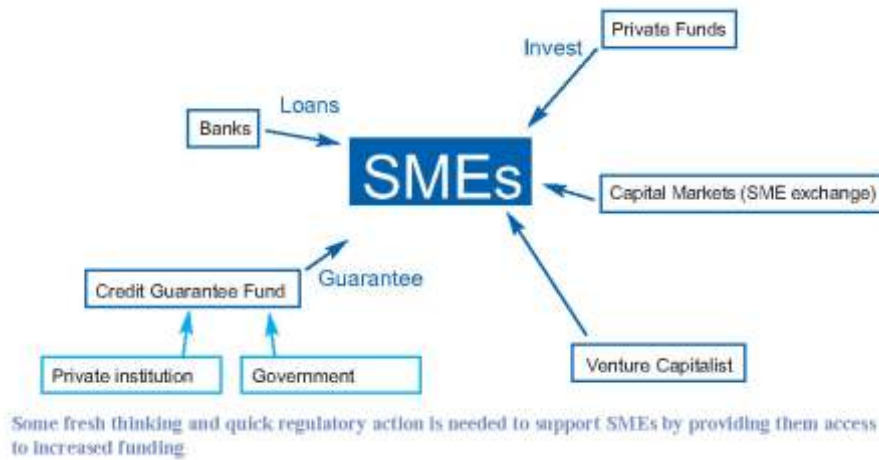

The equity side of funding has seen its fair share of innovation. The Alternative Investment Market (AIM) in London allows smaller companies to raise funds under a distinctly different and more flexible regulatory and compliance framework. Countries such as Korea and Italy have set up separate exchanges to allow SMEs to raise equity. The vibrant venture capital and private equity market in the United States, especially for technology companies, is another example of ready access to equity funding. In the Indian context, we have made some progress in most of these directions over the past few years, but a lot more needs to be done to scale up these initiatives to a level where their impact is significant. We began well by setting up the first credit bureau in India a few years ago, but that initiative needs to be significantly enhanced. A facilitative atmosphere for the entry of newer entities and technologies is badly needed. An admirable beginning in the SME ratings space by rating agencies like CRISIL has led to about 10,000 SMEs being rated in India till date. The initiative is now set to move to the next level, as ratings become more centrally embedded in the financial system. Numerous SMEs that we rate have reported a significant improvement in lender interest and increased attention from financiers. We have vibrant venture capital and private equity initiatives in India, but their impact is restricted to the higher-end companies in the SME space. Pure venture capital, especially at small deal sizes, is notoriously hard to come by. A significant incentivisation or more favourable regulatory/tax treatment for small venture capital transactions would help in making this segment more attractive. Last, but not the least, we need to create a vibrant public platform for small-ticket equity raising by SMEs. This would benefit venture capital and private equity players. These players could then consider an exit much earlier as compared to a conventional big ticket IPO. An optimal balance between simpler regulation and compliance norms, coupled with necessary investor safeguards, would help establish such an exchange on a firm footing.

Banking Sector Update

Bank NPAs to triple, but won't endanger sector: CRISIL

The quality of Indian banks' assets is likely to deteriorate over the next two years. This will be driven by the slowdown in the economy, and by the aging of loans made in recent years: banking sector advances have grown roughly four-fold over the past seven years, to an estimated Rs.27.7 trillion. CRISIL projects that, by end-March 2011, the sector's gross non-performing assets (GNPAs) will increase to around 5 per cent of its advances, from 2.3 per cent at end-March 2008; in absolute terms, this will mean a tripling of NPAs to Rs.1.9 trillion. Nevertheless, CRISIL believes that the banking sector's strong capitalisation will allow it to comfortably absorb the effect of the increased NPAs.

Mr. Raman Uberoi, Senior Director, CRISIL Ratings, said, "The increase in NPAs will be driven by delinquencies in corporate loans; this asset class accounts for about 56 per cent of banks' advances." The GNPA ratio in this segment is projected to more than double by March 2011, to around 4.1 per cent, from the March 31, 2008 figure of 1.6 per cent. "The deterioration in the asset quality of corporate loans will result from the increasing intensity of the demand slowdown, a lack of access to funding at reasonable rates, movements in foreign exchange rates, and the lengthening working capital cycle. The effect of these factors on loans made to small and medium enterprises will be severe", Mr. Uberoi added. In the retail loan book, a combination of dilution in underwriting standards in the recent past, and the aging of loans in the portfolio after a period of rapid growth, will drive delinquencies higher. The GNPA ratio in the retail portfolio, which constitutes more than 20 per cent of banks' total advances, is expected to increase to 4.7 per cent by March 31, 2011, from 3.2 per cent as on March 31, 2008.

However, banks are strongly capitalised, cushioning the impact of higher NPAs. The capital coverage for NPAs has increased sharply over the past ten years: the ratio of net worth to net NPAs was 12.8 times as of end-March 2008, against 2.2 times as of end-March 1998. Mr. Tarun Bhatia, Head, CRISIL Ratings, said, "Given the increase in banks' net worth over the past ten years, and the reduction in their NPAs, capital coverage for NPAs in the sector is at a very high level. Therefore, even with the expected jump in NPAs, we project the ratio of net worth to net NPAs at 5 times as on March 31, 2011. This provides sufficient coverage for losses that might arise out of these NPAs." In addition, the banking sector's assets are far more diversified than they were in 1998, with a greater proportion of the exposure being to retail loans and the service sector.
